CHRYSALIS: Professional Development for Artists in Education

by Kathleen Gaffney,
Artistic Director, Artsgenesis, Inc.

CHRYSALIS: Professional Development for Artists in Education, is a new book on training for teaching artists. The book is written by Kathleen Gaffney, nationally recognized trainer of teaching artists, actress, playwright and Artistic Director Artsgenesis, Black Bear Books, Inc. is publishing with an October 21st delivery. It is a complete guide to everything a teaching artists needs to know to succeed in the schools.

Chrysalis, at 135 pages, includes interactive surveys for self-assessment, guided self-reflection pages, stories, best practices and educational theory decoded in the language that artists speak. The book covers three comprehensive levels of training.

- 1. Arts Residencies — Working with students
- 2. Professional Development for Educators — Working with teachers
- 3. How to Deliver Training for Leaders — Working with Principals, Education Directors of Arts and Cultural Organizations, Mentors, Facilitators and Staff Developers.

In 2004 Artsgenesis conducted an in-depth training series for Education Directors of the professional theatres in New Jersey funded by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation. This T3 Leadership training series was the final catalyst for writing the book.

Artsgenesis, Inc., a multiple award winning non-profit arts-in-education organization, develops teachers and artists across the country through institutes, keynotes, and consulting. It has placed thousands of artists-in-residence in classrooms in the greater New York metropolitan area, and has partnered nationally with dozens of organizations on arts projects.
